exploring human experience the spirit of this book is pragmatic and relies on a husserlian phenomenology primarily understood as a method of exploring our experience the vast all the normal dimensions of human life perception motion memory imagination speech everyday social interactions cognitive events that can be precisely defined as tasks in laboratory experiments e g a protocol for visual attention but also manifestations of mental life more fraught with meaning dreaming intense emotions social tensions altered states of consciousness the central assertion in this work is that this immanent ability is habitually ignored or at best practiced unsystematically that is to say blindly exploring human experience amounts to developing and cultivating this basic ability through specific training only a hands on non dogmatic approach can lead to progress and that is what animates this book series b
