the notion that every state has an interest in the territorial integrity of every other state no matter how distant they are and how slight their connections is peculiar to the twentieth century to be sure poets and philosophers had perceived humanity's common interest in preventing wars and statesmen had found that aggression from outside the community could be deterred by the mutual defense of those within it but no one had ever tried to organize an all embracing system that used the collective force of its members to prevent one of them from attacking another it took the wide devastation of two world wars and the failure of the balance of power systems that preceded them to instigate the search for a more effective way to manage power to the founders of the league of nations and the united nations there was nothing extravagant about the idea that peace is indivisible their countries had been drawn into wars that were largely not of their making they had learned that to control their destinies they must act early with others to keep the peace it is this core of national self interest that drives collective security if the system works at any moment in history it is because its members believe they have enough stake in the existing order to warrant taking measures against any nation that threatens to destroy the fabric of that order this book examines the use of presidential power during the war on terror justin deplato joins the debate on whether the constitution matters in determining how each branch of the federal government should use its power to combat the war on terror the actions and words of presidents george w bush and barack obama are examined deplato's findings support the theory that executives use their own prerogative in determining what emergency powers are and how to use them according to deplato the presidents argue that their powers are implied in article ii of the constitution not expressed this conclusion renders the constitution meaningless in times of crisis the author reveals that presidents are becoming increasingly cavalier and that the nation should consider adopting an amendment to the constitution to proffer expressed executive emergency powers
