European academics have been at the centre of ongoing higher education reforms as changes in university governance and funding have led to changes in academic work and life. Discussing the academic profession and most importantly its increasing stratification across Europe, Changing European Academics explores the drivers of these changes as well as their current and expected results. This comparative study of social stratification, work patterns and research productivity examines eleven national higher education systems across Europe: Austria, Finland, Germany, Ireland, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom. It provides a panoramic view of the European academic profession, confronts misconceptions of academic work and life with compelling results and detailed analyses, discusses new dilemmas inherent to the changing social and economic environments of higher education, and offers a thoughtful and comprehensive study of the changing academic profession in Europe. This book will be of interest to higher education practitioners, managers, and policy makers both in Europe and globally. Changing European Academics will benefit anyone whose work relates to changing academic institutions and changing academic careers.

All students and professors need to write, and many struggle to finish their stalled dissertations, journal articles, book chapters, or grant proposals. Writing is hard work and can be difficult to wedge into a frenetic academic schedule. In this practical, light-hearted, and encouraging book, Paul Silvia explains that writing productively does not require innate skills or special traits but specific tactics and actions. Drawing examples from his own field of psychology, he shows readers how to overcome motivational roadblocks and become prolific without sacrificing evenings, weekends, and vacations. After describing strategies for writing productively, the author gives detailed advice from the trenches on how to write, submit, revise, and resubmit articles; how to improve writing quality; and how to write and publish academic work.
