a dreamer petitions his king for a boat and gets more than he bargained for in this richly enigmatic short story by the nobel prize winning author kirkus a man went to knock at the king s door and said give me a boat the king s house had many other doors but this was the door for petitions but the king spent all his time sitting at the door for favors favors being offered to the king you understand whenever he heard someone knocking at the door for petitions he would pretend not to hear so begins this beautifully illustrated and deceptively simple fable why the petitioner required a boat where he was bound for and who volunteered to crew for him the reader will soon discover in a departure from his linguistically dense and sprawling historical novels jose saramago presents a philosophic love story worthy of swift or voltaire australia is the planet s sole island continent this book argues that the uniqueness of this geography has shaped australian history and culture including its literature further it shows how the fluctuating definition of the island continent throws new light on the relationship between islands and continents in the mapping of modernity the book links the historical and geographical conditions of islands with their potent role in the imaginaries of european colonisation it prises apart the tangled web of geography fantasy desire and writing that has framed the western understanding of islands both their real and material conditions and their symbolic power from antiquity into globalised modernity the book also traces how this spatial imaginary has shaped the modern man who is imagined as being the island s mirror the inter relationship of the island fantasy colonial expansion and the literary construction of place and history created a new man the dislocated and alienated subject of post colonial modernity this book looks at the contradictory images of islands from the allure of the desert island as a paradise where the world can be made anew to their roles as prisons as these ideas are made concrete at moments of british colonialism it also considers alternatives to viewing islands as objects of possession in the archipelagic visions of island theorists and writers it compares the european understandings of the first and last of the new worlds the caribbean archipelago and the australian island continent to calibrate the different ways these disparate geographies unified and fractured the concept of the planetary globe in particular it examines the role of the island in this process specifically its capacity to figure a graspable globe in the mind the book draws on the colonial archive and ranges across australian literature from the first novel written and published in australia by a convict on the island of tasmania to both the ancient dreaming and the burgeoning literature of aboriginal and torres strait islanders in the twenty first century it discusses australian literature in an international context drawing on the long traditions of literary islands across a range of cultures the book s approach is theoretical and engages with contemporary philosophy which uses the island and the archipelago as a key metaphor it is also historicist and includes considerable original historical research this book is full of adventure and breath taking suspense two children go on a cruise and get lost at sea the motifs of island and shipwreck have been present in literature and the arts from ancient times whether they occur as plot elements as part of literary or film imagery as symbols in paintings as leitmotifs in songs or as concepts in philosophical theories both have always been a source of fascination to authors artists and scholars in shipwreck and island motifs in literature and the arts brigitte le juez and olga springer have gathered essays that explore shipwreck and island figures in texts as historically culturally and artistically diverse as walter scott s the lord of the isles cristina fernández cubas the lighthouse reality tv series treasure island pop songs of the bbc radio programme desert island discs or the otolith group s essay film hydra decapita romantic writers often asserted their individuality but this assertion tended to take the form of positioning themselves in relation to other authors and literary texts thus they implicitly acknowledged the rich network of broadly understood poetic dialogue as an important and potent source for their own creativity when in 1816 john keats wrote great spirits now on earth are sojourning he celebrated the originality of his contemporaries and the historical significance of his times pointing to deep interest in the hum of mighty works in all the fields of human activity to which the nations ought to listen keats s sonnet suggests not only stimulating exchanges between poets artists and social thinkers in the same language but also the idea of transnational appreciation and dialogue the volume takes up this idea and explores the dialogues of romantic authors within the wide scope of european and american cultures essays by scholars from germany britain bulgaria poland canada and the united states of america examine romantic writers responses to their contemporaries explore their dialogues with the culture of the past and their interactions across the arts and sciences they also scrutinize the romantics far reaching influence on later writers and artists and thus extend the network of artistic exchange to modern times the volume offers a rich tapestry of interconnections that span across time and space interlace languages and cultures and link romantic writers and artists with their predecessors and successors across europe and america the essays in the collection invite the reader to join ongoing dialogues between writers and their audiences of the past and present
