Jack Pun presents best practices in pedagogy and teaching to facilitate effective content subject learning at the secondary school level. Increasingly, parents are sending their children to English medium instruction (EMI) secondary schools in their home countries to prepare them for full immersion in EMI in English native speaking countries. The book explores the teaching and learning processes in EMI senior secondary science classrooms based in thirty secondary schools in Hong Kong, conducting analyses of classroom teacher and student perception data. The author discusses the issues of teaching science through the medium of English in secondary schools, the implications and applications for professional development of science teachers and other content subject teachers, and suggests strategies for teaching science in different EMI contexts. This volume is highly relevant to scholars in the field of educational linguistics, particularly in English language teaching, content-based instruction, content and language integrated learning, and English as a medium of instruction. It is also useful to education policymakers, school teachers, researchers, students, English, and education majors.

The Encyclopedia of Library and Information Sciences, comprising of seven volumes, now in its fourth edition, compiles the contributions of major researchers and practitioners and explores the cultural institutions of more than 30 countries. This major reference presents over 550 entries, extensively reviewed for accuracy in seven print volumes or online. The new fourth edition, which includes 55 new entries and 60 revised entries, continues to reflect the growing convergence among the disciplines that influence information and the cultural record, with coverage of the latest topics as well as classic articles of historical and theoretical importance.

The February issue includes an appendix entitled Directory of United States Government Periodicals and Subscription Publications. The September issue includes a list of depository libraries. June and December issues include a semiannual index.

It identifies and describes specific government assistance opportunities such as loans, grants, counseling, and procurement contracts available under many agencies and programs.

A hybrid approach to teaching Chinese through digital humanities, CALL, and project-based learning presents an exposition of current thinking, research, and best practices in computer-assisted language learning (CALL), digital humanities (DH), and project-based language learning (PBL) in the context of teaching Chinese as a foreign language (TCFL). It proposes integrating CALL and DH into PBL to form a digital humanities-augmented technology-enhanced project-based language learning (DATEPBL) approach to transform student learning by combining DH pedagogy and CALL technology with PBL. The approach takes advantage of their synergies, which enables instructors to help students develop linguistic and cultural competency as well as 21st-century skills. Case studies and best practices from experienced Chinese language teachers are presented to demonstrate the value of the DATEPBL approach. This is the first volume that covers all three fields and makes a strong case for the importance of incorporating CALL, DH, and PBL for effective language learning. Written for professionals in language education, including educators, curriculum designers, and developers, graduate students, publishers, government personnel, and researchers, the book provides theoretical insights and practical applications of CALL, DH, and PBL.
