this radically original book argues for the power of ordinary language philosophy a tradition inaugurated by ludwig wittgenstein and j l austin and extended by stanley cavell to transform literary studies in engaging and lucid prose toril moi demonstrates this philosophy s unique ability to lay bare the connections between words and the world dispel the notion of literature as a monolithic concept and teach readers how to learn from a literary text moi first introduces wittgenstein s vision of language and theory which refuses to reduce language to a matter of naming or representation considers theory s desire for generality doomed to failure and brings out the philosophical power of the particular case contrasting ordinary language philosophy with dominant strands of saussurean and post saussurean thought she highlights the former s originality critical power and potential for creative use finally she challenges the belief that good critics always read below the surface proposing instead an innovative view of texts as expression and action and of reading as an act of acknowledgment intervening in cutting edge debates while bringing wittgenstein austin and cavell to new readers revolution of the ordinary will appeal beyond literary studies to anyone looking for a philosophically serious account of why words matter both the acquisition of new and the modification of previously acquired motor skills are necessary to achieve optimal levels of motor performance in everyday functioning as well as to attain expert performance levels that are evident in sports and arts a multitude of factors have been shown to influence the various stages of the learning process from the acquisition i e motor memory encoding to the consolidation and subsequent retention of a skill these factors or modulators can affect learning through online processes taking place during practice of a new motor skill or through offline processes occurring in the absence of task performance i e after training sessions although much of the recent research from various disciplines has placed an increased emphasis on identifying factors that can influence the motor learning process we lack an integrated understanding of online and offline determinants of motor skill behaviours potential motor learning modulators include but are certainly not limited to stress anxiety attention executive functioning social interaction stimulus response mapping training schedule regimen learning environment vigilance consciousness states including sleep wakefulness or meditation brain stimulation interference as well as resting state brain connectivity pathological and non pathological i e development or aging changes in the brain can also be conceptualized as potential modulators the aim of this research topic is to bridge research from the cognitive sensory motor and psychological domains using various behavioural paradigms and neuroimaging techniques in order to provide a comprehensive view of the online and offline modulators of motor learning and how they interact to influence motor performance critically the overarching goal is to gain a better understanding of how motor behaviour can be optimized we believe that merging research from diverse neuroscientific communities would contribute to fulfilling this goal and potentially highlight possible shared neurophysiological
