this insightful book shows how prioritising loving relationships in the primary school between practitioners and children helps secure children s emotional well being improves behaviour and leads to more successful learning it identifies the fundamental values that underpin effective learning encounters and provides the practical tools and language to realise deep connections with children combining theory with personal experience the authors present relationship based practice as a robust and credible pedagogic approach to teaching and learning the book offers unique features such as shared language to support and promote a rich meaningful dialogue and the lens of the authors offers practical and realistic contexts to help teachers apply theory and ideas from personal experience giving educators the confidence to teach with the relational qualities of love trust respect and empathy this is essential reading for all teachers wanting to develop authentic relationships with the children they care for this thesis has investigated teachers perception of the concept of love in early childhood care and education ecce in aotearoa new zealand through a critical examination of love as a component of teaching practice by examining love as a multi layered phenomenon the role of the teacher has been positioned as one of the key influences in a child s life through which that child may experience love this critical examination emerged from a concern about the lack of recognition of love as an integral facet of teaching and has argued for children s right to be loved by their teachers and teachers rights and responsibilities to love children in an educational context in partnership with parents and whanau extended family the narratives of six qualified ecce teachers from a range of backgrounds and ecce environments were gathered using a qualitative case study methodology semi structured interviews were used as the primary data collection tool case study findings were supported by the literature reviewed the context within which the word love is used prescribes its meaning berscheid 2006 and research findings indicated participants need for a definition of love they could relate to their role the research also revealed that tensions existed between the compatibility of teaching with love and the notion of professionalism in ecce the relative invisibility of love in initial teacher education and ministry of education moe documentation particularly in aotearoa new zealand s early childhood curriculum te whariki moe 1996 was interpreted to be a contributory factor to these tensions this research identified the interwoven nature of love in te whariki moe 1996 and concluded the need for it to be made more apparent in the english language text of the document the argument has been made that if this insight was more widely accepted it would have implications for initial teacher education and ongoing professional development which could contribute to the situation in which love was accepted as a legitimate component of discourse about the teaching profession dalli 2006 it has been acknowledged that significant scope remains for investigation into the concept of love in ecce towards a pedagogy of love in aotearoa new zealand an important look at education and the urban poor and a continuation of the experiments in education of pedagogy of the oppressed freire describes the everyday struggles political as well as administrative fought in the urban schools of sao paulo during freire s recent 10 year tenure as minister of education despite challenges and continuing inequalities surrounding urban education there are instances which provide a counter narrative to the dominant discourses of failure urban educators who engage conscious caring and armed love in their practice are an example of this this qualitative instrumental case study examines the practices of two transformative urban educators around caring and armed love in their classroom praxis this study examines their conceptions and practice of these approaches through interview field notes and video data the findings involve manifestations of both caring and armed love including connection nurturance through food community directness relationships honesty respect and demand as well as high expectations despite the challenges that surrounded this school the atmosphere of caring and armed love acted like a protective barrier or space of safety for the students my conclusion points to the vital significance of re humanizing our educational discourse in favor of the genuine care and connections that exist in urban settings and the importance of re centering our discussion to focus on the human aspects of education which lie at the core of our profession firmly anchored in a critical educational tradition of struggle fighting loving teaching reawakens teachers to educational justice and the everyday possibilities of a pedagogy of the heart with uncompromising passion and commitment this timely book weaves a narrative of critical persistence and radical hope in an effort to reinsert the revolutionary power of love into current discourses of democratic schooling and society antonia darder leavey endowed chair of ethics and moral leadership loyola marymount university los angeles author of reinventing paulo freire a pedagogy of love

this volume assembles a range of writers from diverse backgrounds and geographies to examine five broadly defined areas in elementary education foundational issues social and sexual development curriculum the family and gay lesbian educators and their allies this book is an exploration of a collective writing laboratory designed to stimulate creativity and critical reflection for education professionals the authors uncover how a writing lab can help educators develop their teaching practices and identities by means of critical creative collaborative relational and arts based methodologies a theoretical insight into pedagogies of love and freedom illustrating how laboratory practices in education can become acts of daily care the book will appeal to students and scholars of education arts based methods and creativity pedagogies of kindness and respect presents a wide variety of concepts from scholars and practitioners who discuss pedagogies of kindness an alternative to the no excuses ideology now dominating the way that children are raised and educated in the u s today the fields of education and especially early childhood education include some histories and perspectives that treat those who are younger with kindness and respect this book demonstrates an informed awareness of this history and the ways that old and new ideas can counter current conditions that are harmful to both those who are younger and those who are older while avoiding the reconstitution of the romantic innocent child who needs to be saved by more advanced adults two interpretations of the upbringing of children are investigated and challenged one suggesting that the poor do not know how to raise their children and thus need help while the other looks at those who are privileged and therefore know how to nurture their young these opposing views have been discussed and problematized for more than thirty years pedagogies of kindness and respect investigates the issue of why this circumstance has continued and even worsened today
