in the realm of hard sciences time is seen as moving forward towards the future providing a framework for navigating the entropy and disorder of systems time is seen subjectively in the humanities as bergson describes it in terms of recursive cycles exposed via sentient experience from both angles humanity is inevitably susceptible to time either they die from entropic dispersion or depersonalizing repetition much like science myth reminds us that time ultimately devours life but it also points to a possible escape though cronus eats his offspring except for the youngest one zeus who is saved by a stratagem devised by his mother rhea that is replacing the baby with a stone the image of the father suppressing the next generation is then replaced by the myth of the future emerging from the past when all children are regurgitated by means of another of zeus tricks thus the myth implies that intellect the trick and intellectual works the stones can transcend time if human beings cannot endure their extreme transience they can endure the lesser transience of their constructions in time born to last either physically or as collective memory the very essence of architecture engages in a titanic survival endeavour yet in an era anchored to the myths of perennial youth shall we also allow the right to be forgotten this detailed study of the papacy during the reformation was first published between 1882 and 1894 the author was an academic and an ordained anglican having studied at oxford and spent time in the parish of embleton in northumberland he was appointed the first dixie professor of ecclesiastical history at cambridge became bishop of peterborough and ended his career as bishop of london
