this book commences with an analysis of the current state of child soldiering internationally thereafter the proscriptive content of contemporary norms on the prohibition of the use and recruitment of child soldiers is evaluated so as to determine whether these norms are capable of better enforcement an issues based approach is adopted in terms of which no specific regime of law such as international humanitarian law ihl is deemed dominant instead universal and regional human rights law international criminal law and ihl are assessed cumulatively so as to create a mutually reinforcing web of protection ultimately it is argued that the effective implementation of child soldier prohibitive norms does not require major changes to any entity or functionary engaged in such prevention rather it requires the constant reassessment and refinement of all such entities and functionaries and here some changes are suggested international judicial quasi judicial and non judicial entities and functionaries most relevant to child soldier prevention are critically assessed ultimately the conclusions reached are assessed in light of a case study on the use and recruitment of child soldiers in the democratic republic of the congo

however unthinkable child soldiers may be within a generalized conception of childhood they are not imaginary figures rather they are a constant in almost every armed conflict around the world the participation of children in wars may question the idea of childhood as a once upon a time story with a happy and predictable ending disrupting the natural idea of a protected and innocent childhood and also eliciting fear uncertainty revulsion horror and sorrow using the perspectives of both childhood studies and critical approaches to international relations jana tabak explores the constructions of child soldiers as children at risk and at the same time risky children more specifically the child and the world aims both to problematize the boundaries that articulate child soldiers as necessarily deviant and pathological in relation to normal children and to show how these specific limits participate in the re production and promotion of a particular version of the international political order in this sense the focus of this work is not on investigating child soldiers lives and experiences per se but on their presumed threatening feature as they depart from the protected territory of childhood disquieting everyday international life humanitarians operate on the frontlines of today's armed conflicts where they regularly negotiate to provide assistance and to protect vulnerable civilians this book explores this unique and under researched field of humanitarian negotiation it details the challenges faced by humanitarians negotiating with armed groups in yemen myanmar and elsewhere arguing that humanitarians typically negotiate from a position of weakness it also explores some of the tactics and strategies they use to overcome this power asymmetry to reach more favorable agreements the author applies these findings to broader negotiation scholarship and investigates the implications of this research for the field and practice of humanitarianism this book also demonstrates how non state actors both humanitarians and armed groups have become increasingly potent diplomatic actors it challenges traditional state centric approaches to diplomacy and argues that non state actors constitute an increasingly crucial vector through which international relations are replicated and reconstituted during contemporary armed conflict only by accepting these changes to the nature of diplomacy itself can the causes symptoms and solutions to armed conflict be better managed this book will be of interest to scholars concerned with conflict resolution negotiation and mediation as well as to humanitarian practitioners themselves
