this book articulates a qualitative stance drawing inspiration from the danish psychologist steinar kvale s work the qualitative stance involves a point of departure where the social world is described before theorized understood before explained and seen as concrete qualities rather than abstract quantities it focuses on the cultural everyday and situated aspects of human thinking learning knowing acting and ways of understanding ourselves as persons while at the same time striving to be scientific international authorities on qualitative inquiry education psychology and philosophy each develop different aspects of the qualitative stance by engaging with three distinct themes the first centers around qualitative studies on learning studied as a social phenomenon of human beings in changing social practices the second theme is a critique of current educational practices and the postmodern consumer society arrived at through careful descriptions of subjectivity and contemporary social relations the third theme is about the development of new ways of thinking about qualitative inquiry challenging standard economic models this book shows how farmers tend to use cognitive shortcuts and how professional pride frequently trumps profit considerations when farmers make decisions about fertilizers and other types of decisions this indicates that environmental regulation based on economic incentives may not work as effectively as economic theory and ex ante policy analyses would have it rather than assuming that regulations respond to incentive based policies this book examines the ways in which they do which is rare in the policy making literature furthermore the book demonstrates in a real world setting how bounded rationality plays out whereas bounded rationality in decision making has typically been studied in a laboratory setting the book contains a comprehensive and comparative review of rational and bounded rationality models of behavior it explores concepts developed in books such as administrative behaviour by herbert simon and a behavioural theory of the firm by cyert and march and it reviews their implications for economic theory and environmental policy empirically the book examines the responses of farmers in denmark to fertilizer regulation and the decision processes they go through regarding fertilizer levels fertilizer regulation builds on economically optimal levels and therefore offers a rational standard against which to compare actual decisions on fertilizer levels this lends the study a significant methodological advantage and it represents a novel approach to the study of rationality it combines quantitative analysis of fertilizer practices among danish farmers over more than 10 years with qualitative interviews these are compared with analysis other types of decisions showing that decision processes and the weight assigned to economic considerations varies by type of decisions this thorough revision of babbie s standard setting book presents a succinct straightforward introduction to the field of research methods as practiced by social scientists contemporary examples such as terrorism alzheimer s disease anti gay prejudice and education and the legalization of marijuana make this fourth edition thoroughly fascinating as it introduces you to the how tos and whys of social research methods the book s new qualitative coverage combined with its already strong quantitative material makes this new edition babbie s best yet babbie long respected in the field and renowned for his engaging and friendly writing style gives you the tools you need for understanding social research methods and for applying these concepts both inside and outside the classroom as a researcher and as a consumer of research with a strong emphasis on ethics and additional qualitative material this fourth edition is authoritative yet student friendly and engaging enough to help you connect the dots between the world of social research and the real world
