making european muslims provides an in depth examination of what it means to be a young muslim in europe today where the assumptions values and behavior of the family and those of the majority society do not always coincide focusing on the religious socialization of muslim children at home in semi private islamic spaces such as mosques and quran schools and in public schools the original contributions to this volume focus largely on countries in northern europe with a special emphasis on the nordic region primarily denmark case studies demonstrate the ways that family life public education and government policy intersect in the lives of young muslims and inform their developing religious beliefs and practices mark sedgwick s introduction provides a framework for theorizing muslimness in the european context arguing that muslim children must navigate different and sometimes contradictory expectations and demands on their way to negotiating a european muslim identity interlingua som offentliggjordes år 1951 som resultatet av ett 25 årigt vetenskapligt lagarbete under ledning av framstående språkmän kan sägas vara ett moderniserat latin och har efter detta språks tillbakagång alla förutsättningar att spela en viktig roll som framtidens internationella språk interlinguas ordförråd är helt internationellt språket förstås därför utan svårighet av varje kultiverad person efter en stunds studium av dess grammatik interlinguas grammatik är mycket enkel och naturlig språket är därför flera gånger lättare att lära än något nationellt språk med interlingua kan man utan svårighet göra sig förstådd i alla länder med spanska italienska eller portugisiska som modersmål mer upplysningar samt adresser finns på interlingua nu this book is a functional typological study of possession splits in european languages it shows that genetically and structurally diverse languages such as icelandic welsh and maltese display possessive systems which are sensitive to semantically based distinctions reminiscent of the alienability correlation these distinctions are grammatically relevant in many european languages because they require dedicated constructions what makes these split possessive systems interesting for the linguist is the interaction of semantic criteria with pragmatics and syntax neutralisation of distinctions occurs under focus the same happens if one of the constituents of a possessive construction is syntactically heavy these effects can be observed in the majority of the 50 sample languages possessive splits are strong in those languages which are outside the standard average european group the bulk of the european languages do not behave much differently from those non european languages for which possession splits are reported the book reveals interesting new facts about european languages and possession to typologists universals researchers and areal linguists this volume is a collection of articles dealing with the linguistic category of possession and its expression in languages spoken in europe and north and central asia uralic turkic indo european and caucasian with a few excursions into other parts of the world some papers engage in typological comparisons both within and beyond the borders of individual language families focusing on issues of motivation meaning and forms used in expressing possession typology of belong constructions marking possession in possessor chains non canonical possessives and their relation to the category of familiarity metaphoric shifts of possessive semantics others focus on possession in individual languages offering new precious pieces of information on the linguistic expression of possession in lesser known languages some of which are endangered and even unwritten the volume will be of interest to both general linguists and typologists as well as to experts students of the individual languages or language families analyzed in the papers
