the french revolutionary shift from monarchical to popular sovereignty came clothed in a new political language a significant part of which was a strange coupling of happiness and rights in old regime ideology frenchmen were considered subjects who had no need of understanding why what was prescribed to them would be in the interest of their happiness the 1789 declaration of the rights of man and of the citizen equipped the french with a list of inalienable rights and if society would respect those rights the happiness of all would materialize this volume explores the authors of fictional literature who contributed alongside pamphleteers politicians and philosophers to the establishment of this new political arena filled with sometimes vague yet insisting notions of happiness and rights the shift from monarchical to popular sovereignty and the corollary transition from subjects to citizens culminated in the summer of 1789 but it was preceded by an immense piece of imaginative work for any country that has a large and diverse migrant population it is a struggle to connect these people to the country s institutions including the healthcare system which can be overwhelming in its complexity cultural and language barriers often make it difficult for doctors to fully understand the symptoms of their migrant patients reach accurate diagnoses or properly treat their suffering thus medical practitioners must attempt new innovative practices in order to reach patients where they are and convince them to accept treatment from doctors they don't totally understand in france serge bouznah and catherine lewertowski have pioneered one such practice that of transcultural mediation drawn from two decades of their experience with transcultural mediation spirits in the consulting room tells the stories of eight patients mainly migrants and their families each chapter focuses on a different patient and christelle djibril moncef alhassane jacinthe amy cyril alice and pierre leap off the page as distinct people with unique situations together these chapters reveal how patients comprehension of their symptoms is shaped by their cultural background while recounting the challenges of translating that into terms the doctors can grasp the book shows how trained transcultural mediators can help to redress the power imbalance between doctors and the migrants they treat providing patients with advocates who respect the authority of their background and experiences and don't just take the side of the medical professionals the groundbreaking insights modeled in this book can be applied to any medical situation where doctors and patients find themselves speaking different languages book is clean and tight no writing in text like new
