rising historians survey the latest generation of work and point to promising directions for future research they show that the field is opening out to address a wider range of adjustments to the experiences and effects of civil war increased interest in cultural history now enriches understandings traditionally centered on social and political history attention to gender has joined a focus on labor as a powerful strategy for analyzing negotiations over private and public authority the contributors suggest that reconstruction historiography might further thrive by strengthening connections to such subjects as western history legal history and diplomatic history and by redefining the chronological boundaries of the postwar period the essays provide more than a variety of attractive vantage points for fresh examination of a major phase of american history by identifying the most exciting recent approaches to a theme previously studied so ably the collection illuminates the creative process in scholarly historical literature global race war explores the racial foundations of global politics from the haitian revolution to the present alexander d barder traces the emergence of this global racial hierarchy from the early 19th century to the present to explain how a historical racial global order unraveled over the first half of the 20th century continued during the cold war and reemerged during the global war on terror as barder shows imperial racial and geopolitical orders intersected over time in ways that violently tore apart the imperial and sovereign state system and continue to haunt politics today in race nation history oded y steinberg examines the way a series of nineteenth century scholars in england and germany first constructed and then questioned the periodization of history into ancient medieval and modern eras shaping the way we continue to think about the past and present of western civilization at a fundamental level steinberg explores this topic by tracing the deep connections between the idea of epochal periodization and concepts of race and nation that were prevalent at the time especially the role that germanic or teutonic tribes were assumed to play in the unfolding of western history steinberg shows how english scholars such as thomas arnold williams stubbs and john richard green and german scholars such as christian karl josias von bunsen max müller and reinhold pauli built on the notion of a shared teutonic kinship to establish a correlation between the division of time and the ascent or descent of races or nations for example although they viewed the germanic tribes conquest of the roman empire in a d 476 as a formative event that symbolized the transformation from antiquity to the middle ages they did so by highlighting the injection of a new and dominant ethnoracial character into the decaying empire but they also rejected the idea that the fifth century a d was the most decisive era in historical periodization advocating instead for a historical continuity that emphasized the significance of the germanic tribes influence on the making of the nations of modern europe concluding with character studies of e a freeman james bryce and j b bury steinberg demonstrates the ways in which the innovative schemes devised by this community of victorian historians for the division of historical
