what is the appropriate role for political idealism in society by political idealism i mean the practice of working out and orienting oneself to visions of the best possible society in recent years such idealism has come under attack within political philosophy but i argue that it is precisely a lack of ideal theory that bedevils western society under neoliberalism to show this i take a long step back all the way to plato s republic in fact i claim that plato s argument for philosopher kings is considerably more plausible than is commonly assumed to see this one needs to understand his metaphysics correctly i then try to transpose plato s ideas to the present making them compatible with rawslian political liberalism by giving the latter lexical priority in every case of conflict i show both that platonic political liberalism is possible and via an engagement with marx that it is an ideal that can help us grasp the deficiencies of our own societies today
