in when rebels win kai m thaler explores why victorious rebel groups govern in strikingly different ways many assume civil wars destroy state capacity in the democratic republic of congo and libya for instance victorious rebels perpetuated state weaknesses yet elsewhere like in china and rwanda they built strong capable states kai m thaler argues that to explain post victory governance we must look at rebel group ideologies the ideas and goals around which a group is formed where a group s ideology falls along two key dimensions programmatic versus opportunistic inclusive versus exclusive influences how it governs programmatic inclusive groups seek to reach across territory and work with populations to implement goals building the state to try to transform society opportunistic exclusive groups by contrast prioritize personalized power and private wealth neglecting statebuilding with rich evidence from africa latin america and asia when rebels win rethinks accounts of rebel behavior and post war governance emphasizing factors such as resource availability or international intervention wartime rebel ideology thaler demonstrates is not just cheap talk and civil war can counterintuitively lead to stronger states

Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts, we have not used OCR (Optical Character Recognition) as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches, etc., we have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy.

Excerpt from Victor Victorious: It was a magnificent tree, old and stately. It was moreover the first cause of grief that I can remember. Its foliage in summer afforded much shade, and in the mornings when the sun was shining, caused patterns to appear on the floor of my nursery. My sorrow was that I could not fasten the pattern to the floor with tacks. Tacks of the ordinary tin variety which I had procured from Goodness only knows where. I tried again and again weeping bitterly at my want of success. I wept still more bitterly when my nurse returned but that is a detail which has nothing to do with these memoirs. It is a sacred thing not to be spoken of lightly. Such is the first of my remembrances and I was then between three and four years of age. After that my memories are confused and not particularly interesting much the same I daresay as many millions of children can look back on childish miseries, mishaps and pleasures but always of the same place and the same people.
