a zestfully written book packed with humor pathos and hard earned wisdom john mcmillian washington post a shockingly frank memoir from a prize winning economist reflecting on his remarkable personal odyssey and his changing positions on identity race and belief economist glenn c loury is one of the most prominent public intellectuals of our time he s often radically opposed to the political mainstream and delights in upending what's expected of a black public figure but more so than the arguments themselves on affirmative action institutional racism trumpism his public life has been characterized by fearlessness and a willingness to recalibrate strongly held and forcefully argued beliefs. Lorde grew up on the south side of Chicago, earned a PhD in MIT's economics program and became the first black tenured professor of economics at Harvard at the age of thirty-three. He has been at turns a young father, a drug addict, an adulterer, a psychiatric patient, a born-again Christian, a lapsed born-again Christian, a black Reaganite who has swung from the right to the left and back again. In Late Admissions, Lorde examines what it means to chart a sense of self over the course of a tempestuous but well-considered life.

Motherhood inherently involves labor. The seemingly perennial notion that paid work outside the home and motherhood are incompatible, however, grows out of specific cultural conditions established in Britain and her colonies during the long eighteenth century. With Laboring Mothers, Ellen Malenka Ledoux synthesizes and expands on two feminist dialogues to deliver an innovative transatlantic cultural history of working motherhood, addressing both actual historical women and fabricated representations of a type. Ledoux demonstrates how contingent ideas about the public sphere and maternity functioned together to create systems of power and privilege among working mothers. Popular culture has long thrown doubt on the idea that women can be both productive and reproductive at the same time. Although the critical task of raising and providing for a family should, in theory, foster solidarity, this has not historically proven the case. Laboring Mothers demonstrates how contemporary associations surrounding economic status, race, and working motherhood have their roots in an antiquated and rigid system of inequality among women that dates back to the Enlightenment.

The American astronaut image was informed by early Cold War ideals of masculinity that helped mold a distinctly American anti-communist masculinity which appeared on the surface anyway to resolve not only an American crisis of masculinity but helped win the Cold War on an ideological and popular level. This American image focused on strict gender binaries of man as the protector controlling technology and containing communism while woman was the passive actor with spaceflight technology left behind in the home waiting for the return of the astronaut husband allowing women to fly into space would have represented a lack of individual control with spaceflight technology
